Introduction to Chinese Medicine for Healers

Have you been seeking health care that doesn't seem to address your issues? If you desire to learn about your body and TCM and nothing more, this class will be well worth your while. This class is open to the public.

Traditional Chinese medicine (TCM) is a comprehensive science that studies human health and disease, as well as disease prevention, diagnosis, treatment, prognosis, and health care.

Use of the knowledge of TCM for Reflexologists is vital. TCM will give alternative thought patterns about the Reflexology reflex condition other than sought after by Western Medicine. It will provide another way of questioning a person about their body energy. Reflexology does not diagnose but will evaluate the body's energy on the distal parts of the body (feet, hands, face and ears).

In the Introduction to TCM for Healers, the student will learn about the 5 Elements and 2 Extra Ordinary Elements as well as some other traits of TCM.

This class does not go into any spiritual aspects of TCM but strictly deals with the basic evaluation of the Reflexology reflexes and meridians in the feet and hands relative to body energy.

This class is a prerequisite for all Oriental Reflexology Classes at Ray of Hope Academy. You do not have to be a prospective student to take the class.
